The Road to Immortality
Nov 05 2020
The Road to Immortality provides the reader with a sublime vision of the afterlife, allegedly communicated from 'other side' by the eminent psychologist and psychic researcher Frederic William H. Myers. Myers was one of the founders of the Society of Psychical Research and he spent much of his life researching survival of consciousness, so it is not surprising that having passed away in 1901, if he found himself conscious of his surroundings, he would try to communicate with his colleagues and loved ones still in the flesh. According to an automatic writing medium Geraldine Cummins, this happened in the 1920's. Communicating through Cummins, Myers stated: "We communicate an impression through the inner mind of the medium. It receives the impression in a certain way. It has to contribute to the body of the message; we furnish the spirit of it. In other words, we send the thoughts, the words usually in which they must be framed, but the actual letters or spelling of the words is drawn from the memory. Sometimes we only send the thoughts and the medium's unconscious mind clothes them in words." Disembodied messengers such as Silver Birch have spoken about the group-soul and Myers went into great detail about the soul. "When I was on earth, I belonged to a group-soul, but its branches and the spirit - which might be compared to a tree - were in the invisible," "Now, if you would understand psychic evolution, this group-soul must be studied and understood. For instance, it explains many of the difficulties that people will assure you can be removed only by the doctrine of reincarnation. You may think my statement frivolous, but the fact that we do appear on earth to be paying for the sins of another life is, in a certain sense, true. It is our life and yet not our life. In other words, a soul belonging to the group-soul which I am a part lived that previous life which built up for me the framework of my earthly life, lived it before I was born, passed through the gates of birth." Myers further explained that the group soul might contain twenty souls, a hundred, or a thousand. "The number varies," he said. "It is different for each man. But what the Buddhist would call the karma I had brought with me from a previous life is, very frequently, not that of my life, but of the life of a soul that preceded me by many years on earth and left for me the pattern which made my life. I, too, wove a pattern for another of my kindred during my earthly career. Myers added that the Buddhist's idea of rebirth, of man's continual return to earth, is a profound truth. "And often half a truth is more inaccurate than an entire misstatement. I shall not live again on earth, but my soul, one who will join our group, will shortly enter into the pattern or karma I have woven for him on earth." Myers likened the soul to a spectator caught within the spell of some drama outside of its actual life, perceiving all the consequences of acts, moods, and thoughts of a kindred soul. He further pointed out that there are an infinite number of conditions in the invisible world and that he made no claim to being infallible. He called it a "general rule" based on what he had learned and experienced on the Other Side.

Irish Women Writers
Jan 19 2022
Surveys the lives and works of roughly 75 Irish women writers active in a range of genres and periods.

The Report: Morocco 2005-21 2019 Morocco's economy is well diversified, particularly relative to many countries in the MENA region. Tourism is a substantial contributor, generating nearly $6bn (€5.4bn) in annual revenues, as is the agricultural sector, which can be susceptible to variations in rainfall. Manufacturing industries include textiles, automotive and aeronautics, while recent years have seen the expansion of the ICT sector, particularly outsourcing. Investment in ports, transport and industrial infrastructure, and the establishment of a free trade zone, have boosted competitiveness and left the kingdom well-positioned to act a transport hub and business broker across many African markets.

Early Access to Automated External Defibrillators 2022 Early Access to Automated External Defibrillators is a step-by-step program on how to construct and maintain a Public Access Defibrillation Program for your Church, Business, or outdoor event. The AED is new technology that can be used by the public to save a life. If this device is applied within 4 minutes or less it could increase survival rate to 89%. In less than 2 minutes, increases possible. Seconds count in Sudden Cardiac Arrest. For each minute you are down in full arrest you lose 10% of your life. The only thing that can save your life is an electrical shock from an AED. After 4 minutes you slide into physical death and chances of survival decrease. This manual shows you how to obtain Medical Direction for your program and Calculate formulas to decide your response time and number of AED's to place. The author of this manual has actual experience using these devices in the public setting with great success. For more information go to www.aedmeddirect.com

Lemon-Aid Used Cars and Trucks 2012-2013 2022 Lemon-Aid guides steer the confused and anxious buyer through the economic meltdown unlike any other car-and-truck books on the market. U.S. automakers are suddenly awash in profits, and South Koreans and Europeans have gained market shares, while Honda, Nissan, and Toyota have curtailed production following the 2011 tsunami in Japan. Shortages of Japanese new cars and supplier disruptions are likely to push used car prices through the roof well into 2012, so what should a savvy buyer do? The all-new Lemon-Aid Used Cars and Trucks 2012-2013 has the answers, including: More vehicles rated, with some redesigned models that don't perform as well as previous iterations downrated. More roof crash-worthiness ratings along with an expanded border shopping guide. A revised summary of safety- and performance-related defects that are likely to affect recent models. More helpful websites listed in the appendix as well as an updated list of the best and worst "beaters" in the market. More "secret" warranties taken from automaker internal service bulletins and memos than ever.

Writing Double ~~Aug 02 2020~~ Although Roland Barthes and Michel Foucault announced the death of the author several decades ago, critics have been slow to abandon the idea of the solitary writer. Bette London maintains that this blinded us to the reality that writing is seldom an individual activity and that it has led us to overlook both the forms with which women authors have worked together and the significance of their collaborative undertakings as a fully professional activity. In Writing Double, the first full-length treatment of women's literary partnerships, she goes to the heart of issues surrounding authorial identity. What is an author? Which forms of authorship are sanctioned and which forms marginalized? Which of these forms have particularly attracted women? Such questions are central to London's analysis of the challenge that women's literary collaboration presents to accepted notions of authorship. Focusing on British texts from the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, she considers a fascinating variety of works by large, noncanonical, and in some instances highly unconventional, authors--from the enormously popular novels composed by writing teams at the turn of the century, to the Brontë juvenilia and the occult scripts of Georgie Yeats and W. B. Yeats, to the automatic writings produced by mediums purporting to be in communication with the spirit world.

Metallography as a Quality Control ~~Nov 09 2021~~ Quality control has been described as a system for verifying and maintaining a desired level of quality in a product or process by careful planning, continued inspection, and corrective action where required. With many of today's products, there is an ever increasing demand for improved reliability and service. This in turn necessitates the use of a wide range of control techniques - some very sophisticated and complex. It is not only to verify the quality of the final product but also to monitor that the fabrication processes are under control. Furthermore, with certain industries, quality control of the final product is of paramount importance because of the needs for its reliable and safe operation under arduous and sometimes dangerous conditions. Metallography often serves as an invaluable quality control tool and can provide information not normally attainable by more conventional inspection procedures. It often supplements both destructive techniques, e. g. , mechanical testing, as well as non-destructive inspection procedures, e. g. , as radiography, ultrasonic testing, and dye-penetrant inspection. Furthermore, metallographic inspection utilizes a wide range of techniques ranging from conventional optical microscopy to more sophisticated procedures such as scanning electron microscopy, X-ray spectroscopy, and Auger electron spectroscopy. In some industries, metallography also is employed during maintenance, field inspection, and overhaul of components.

Swan on a Black Sea ~~Aug 14 2021~~ Swan on a Black Sea is Geraldine Cummins' final book which was first published in 1965. The book is an account - an afterlife communication, from the British suffragette and philanthropist, Winifred Margaret Coombe Tennant who passed away in 1956 and first communicated with Cummins in 1957. Coombe Tennant communicated through Cummins using automatic writing; the object being to let her sons know she was still very much alive in the spirit world. The communications are made up of 40 scripts which were communicated between 1957 and 1958. Throughout her life Coombe Tennant was a talented medium but due to her professional and social standing, she chose to keep her gift a secret from all but a handful of friends, and anonymously she practiced her mediumship under the pseudonym, Mrs. Willet. Her sitters included Sir Oliver Lodge, the renowned British scientist who devoted much of his life to psychical research, and a select number of senior members of the Society for Psychical Research. Relaying her experiences as a travel writer might, reporting back from a distant land, she describes her ability to travel back and forth in time. It's as if her physical life is a film and she is able to "go into her film" at any time or place and examine her physical life - a life review or judgment some might conclude. On October 29, 1958 (script 32) she addressed her son Henry who was still alive at the time and was finding it difficult to accept that his dead mother was communicating with her. 'There is a dream sweetness about my present state or place. Yet my environment is familiar and totally real. I live in existence in form both in human etheric forms and surroundings such as in outline nature and man provide. Yet of them and not of them. I am not wedded to them or welded into them. One's mind can govern and alter conditions in a manner not possible on earth. That is, if one exerts oneself, makes an effort. 'At present I am at home again in the land of Wales. You remember my break in life through your father's death. You may recall how I went to live in London in a flat. All that period is not my present environment. 'I am back again in my married life. It is different, though in appearance to my perceptions it is the same outer world of reason, order and sensible arrangements. But it is different in a humanly speaking. I am much with Christopher, who is a darling, while your father pairs off with Daff. That is a new experience to me. 'What is novel also is that I appear to be in a kind of kindergarten and in my working hours I remember what earth time has snatched away from me. So in the study of memory I do not remain at Cadoxton. I make a film of past events and make excursions into different times in my past earth life so as to assimilate it. The script is essentially an afterlife memoir of Winifred Coombe Tennant; they provide a fascinating insight into her world beyond the grave and are essential reading for anyone interested in psychical research and life after death.
