PASCAL User Manual and Report Jan 29 2020 A preliminary version of the programming language Pascal was drafted in 1968. It followed in its spirit the Algol-6m and Algol-W line of languages. After an extensive development phase, a first compiler became operational in 1970, and publication followed a year later (see References 1 and 8, p.1m4). The growing interest in the development of compilers for other computers called for a consolidation of Pascal, and two years of experience in the use of the language dictated a few revisions. This led in 1973 to the publication of a Revised Report and a definition of a language representation in terms of the ISO character set. This booklet consists of two parts: The User Manual, and the Revised Report. The Manual is directed to those who have previously acquired some familiarity with computer programming, and who wish to get acquainted with the language Pascal. Hence, the style of the Manual is that of a tutorial, and many examples are included to demonstrate the various features of Pascal. Summarising tables and syntax specifications are added as Appendices. The Report is included in this booklet to serve as a concise, ultimate reference for both programmers and implementors. It defines standard Pascal which constitutes a common base between various implementations of the language.

Registries for Evaluating Patient Outcomes Aug 25 2019 This User's Guide is intended to support the design, implementation, analysis, interpretation, and quality evaluation of registries created to increase understanding of patient outcomes. For the purposes of this guide, a patient registry is an organized system that uses observational study methods to collect uniform data (clinical and other) to evaluate specified outcomes for a population defined by a particular disease, condition, or exposure, and that serves one or more predetermined scientific, clinical, or policy purposes. A registry database is a file (or files) derived from the registry. Although registries can serve many purposes, this guide focuses on registries created for one or more of the following purposes: to describe the natural history of disease, to determine clinical effectiveness or cost-effectiveness of health care products and services, to measure or monitor safety and harm, and/or to measure quality of care. Registries are classified according to how their populations are defined. For example, product registries include patients who have been exposed to biopharmaceutical products or medical devices. Health services registries consist of patients who have had a common procedure, clinical encounter, or hospitalization. Disease or condition registries are defined by patients having the same diagnosis, such as cystic fibrosis or heart failure. The User's Guide was created by researchers affiliated with AHRQ's Effective Health Care Program, particularly those who participated in AHRQ's DEcIDE (Developing Evidence to Inform Decisions About Effectiveness) program. Chapters were subject to multiple internal and external independent reviews.
