Representations of Black Women in the Media Aug 07 2020 In 1920 W.E.B. Du Bois cited the damnation of women as linked to the devaluation of motherhood. This dilemma, he argues, had a crushing blow on Black women as they were forced into slavery. Black womanhood, portrayed as hypersexual by nature, became an enduring stereotype which did not coincide with the dignity of mother and wife. This portrayal continues to reinforce negative stereotypes of Black women in the media today. This book highlights how Black women have been negatively portrayed in the media, focusing on the export nature of media and its ability to convey notions of Blackness to the public. It argues that media such as rap music videos, television dramas, reality television shows, and newscasts create and affect expectations of Black women. Exploring the role that racism, misogyny and media play in the representation of Black womanhood, it provides a foundation for challenging contemporary media's portrayal of Black women.

Hope's Choice (print) Oct 01 2022 Hope had a choice to make at a young age that affected her life and the boy's life that she loved with all of her heart. Years have gone by, and she has found herself questioning that decision when she's forced to return to her home town after the death of her father. Now she'll have to come face to face with that choice that she made, along with the boy she left behind all though years ago. The boy that still held the key to her heart, but how could she face him again? How could she tell him the secret that she's kept from him? Would he ever forgive her? Only making that trip back home would answer those questions. Hope's Choice is a story of true love and romance with challenges that only life can add to it. If you believe in true love, in romance, soul mates, or even the possibility that everyone has that special someone out in the world made just for them... you should read Hope's Choice.

Hero or Villain? Dec 31 2019 One dimensional television characters are a thing of the past--today's popular shows feature intricate storylines and well developed characters. From the brooding Damon Salvatore in The Vampire Diaries to the tough-minded Rick Grimes in The Walking Dead, protagonists are not categorically good, antagonists often have relatable good sides, and heroes may act as antiheroes from one episode to the next. This collection of new essays examines the complex characters in Orange Is the New Black, Homeland, Key & Peele, Oz, Empire, Breaking Bad, House, and Buffy the Vampire Slayer.
