From Flour Sacks to Satin Jul 20 2021 The purpose of this book is not to embarrass or slander anyone in recording events of my early life, which I believe were unique in the circumstances I experienced. Through the years I have come to dearly love all of my relatives and appreciate the people with whom I was associated, both living and deceased. Whatever happened in my life, God turned into something beneficial and beautiful. Life is a great teacher; and in the mellowness of age, I find it worthwhile. My advice to anyone is to understand that nothing lasts. Change is inevitable. Only God, his eternal precepts for living, and the soul entrusted to a person will last forever. Choice is the great privilege given to each person.

Satin Island May 30 2022 A novel for our times, from the Booker-shortlisted 'master craftsman who is steering the contemporary novel towards exciting new territories' (Observer). Meet U. -- a talented and uneasy figure currently pimping his skills to an elite consultancy in contemporary London. His employers advise everyone from big businesses to governments, and, to this end, expect their 'corporate anthropologist' to help decode and manipulate the world around them -- all the more so now that a giant, epoch-defining project is in the offing. Instead, U. spends his days procrastinating, meandering through endless buffer-zones of information and becoming obsessed by the images with which the world bombards him on a daily basis: oil spills, African traffic jams, roller-blade processions, zombie parades. Is there, U. wonders, a secret logic holding all these images together -- a codex that, once cracked, will unlock the master-meaning of our age? Might it have something to do with South Pacific Cargo Cults, or the dead parachutists in the news? Perhaps; perhaps not. As U. oscillates between the visionary and the vague, brilliance and bullshit, Satin Island emerges, an impassioned and exquisite novel for our disjointed times.

Satin Scars Apr 28 2022 I have a filthy mouth and a heart of gold. Just don't mess with the people I love. When I escaped from UMBRA I set out on a journey to find my father. The fact that there was a detour that lasted a year with a manipulative ex-boyfriend is beside the point. Hi, I'm Karah and I'm an experimental success that resulted in a pretty awesome power. If only I could get it to cooperate with me. When I finally give in to my fathers' wishes to come live with him and his elite group of powerful friends, I thought it would all be a breeze of learning to control my power and finally have some semblance of a normal life. Everything was on track until HE walked in. Tristan Ryker. Blue eyes like the run-off from a glacier. Body built better than any Greek God. A smile that literally has me weak in the knees every time I see it. He's a distraction I can't afford but one I love to indulge. As the months pass by and I rekindle friendships and create new ones, life is more perfect than I could've ever imagined, and I couldn't be happier. Aside from a new addition to the group that I could really do without, and the parties that somehow always have a crappy end, I'm loving every second of my new life. Then it all comes crashing down around me and all I see is red and revenge is the only thing I can think of. Can I keep my mismatch family together? Can I protect everyone that I love dearly and keep this little piece of paradise? The simple answer is hell yes. My past no longer controls me, and I'll fight until my last breath for my people and my home.

B. "Texas Jack" Omohundro, Confederate trooper, trail driving cowboy, guide and scout in the country of hostile Indians, writer, at times a stage actor, the hero of dime novels, yet always somewhat of a mystery, is herein, for the first time, brought to the pages of history on his own account.—Paul I.
