It takes you through the process of how Drumcree's attorneys tried to manipulate the courts through deception to win a favorable verdict for their client. It talks about how Carter a young African-American single male working within upper middle class society was hit with two misfortunes. One the betrayals of a friend who profited from Carter's hard work by taking advantage of and manipulating Carter's position while Carter worked as a legal assistant in a law firm specializing in personal injury. It shows how DRUMCREE, a medical professional tried to manipulate the court system to his advantage via his attorneys while stepping all over Carter to evict Carter from the townhouse they both shared an interest in. Drumcree attorneys believed Carter didn't have the knowledge to fight back within the same court system. They believed Carter would sit by and not answer the complaint and/or any other relevant papers that pertained to the case at bar. After filing a complaint for eviction with the Court Drumcree and his attorney withheld the complaint from Carter and did not advise Carter of the Complaint until the time to answer had run leaving Carter without a defense. Drumcree and his attorneys knew If the complaint is not answered in a timely manner would appear back in court and convince the judge to sign the eviction notice ex-parte. At the same time perpetrating perjury upon the court by telling the court that Carter deliberately didn't answer the complaint and assuring the court that Carter got the complaint in time to answer but didn't. By doing it this way they would have their ill-gotten order signed by a Superior Court Judge. Without an answer from Carter contesting the order before it's signed by the Judge would make it a final decree. The only thing Carter would be able to do would be to file an appeal which would have taken some time and Carter would have been evicted in the mean time until his appeal was heard by a higher tribunal. Two, Carter was trying to establish a Real Estate business by selling homes and not making the necessary capital to keep current with his bills. Carter fell behind in his mortgage payments. By this time Drumcree had profited from Carters' endeavors quite handsomely to the tune of MILLIONS OF DOLLARS before Carter left the law firm. The case takes on many twist and turns from State Court to the Federal District Court before it is adjudicated the survival of extensive documentary evidence, the Pilgrimage of Grace offers a fascinating insight into how the people of the north of England, on the eve of the Reformation, thought about religion, social relations and politics. In this book, Michael Bush opens up an alternative and dynamic means of exploring the popular mentality of the time through an examination of the wide variety of sources generated by the rebels, rather than relying on the social, political and religious views set out in contemporary treaties and sermons towing the government's line.

Civil legal action is battlefield by "words" put in writing from the very beginning of filing a Complaint and Summons, then, going forward by filing of Motions and Briefs, etc. When there is a legal controversy, sue or be sued, the involved parties may feel strongly that it is the other party's fault. He/She/It wants justice, wants to tell the judge how wrong the other party is, and believes once the judge hears (or, reads) the "real story" the judge will rule in his/her/its favor for justice to be served. But before any judge will "hear" any party utters his/her/its side of the story, the judge will first "read" the side of the story from the parties, in "writing" on "paper" "filed" to the court. Legal research is the key to understand judges' legal analysis, rationale, and thought process. We will discuss legal research later in this eBook. "Reading" is a large part of your legal pursuit. Knowledge is power. A good reading habit is a must when you decide to represent yourself in court. The more judges' opinions you can read, the more understanding you will soon develop of the laws, either statutory or common law, which eventually will help you strengthen your legal action when writing motions and arguing in court hearings. Often, you may have to read the same opinion a few times, or many times, before you can comprehend the legal grounds. When you receive your opponent's documents, you may also need to read the documents several times before you make a move. Being emotionally charged and putting yourself in reaction mode are easy mistakes that Pro Se litigants make time and again. Do not read court documents amid doing tasks. Find quiet time and place, then, read thoroughly. There are phases in a legal proceeding: for instance, the beginning, the ending, and a whole lot of stuff in the between. But, mainly, you can categorize it into major three phases while many movements/acts may take place (e.g., filing motions, notices and/or submitting documents as material evidence and/or as references for courts' review) in each phase. Each movement/act is like a battle, big or small, to reach the end goal of winning the legal war; therefore, strategy is vital in any litigation. Motions require legal grounds and good causes that are circumstances allowing you to make a move under the rules of civil procedures and laws. In rules of civil procedures, for instance, litigants are allowed extra time needed to complete the necessary filing (the legal grounds) but they must have good reasons (the good causes.) When writing an arguable motion, you will need to do legal research to back up your argument. In the hearing for your arguable motion, you need to refer to your legal research collected and written in your argument. As there are many ways leading to Rome, so are many ways leading to do your legal research.

Complaint Management Excellence Jul 21 2021 Across the global economy, customers' expectations are continually rising - but many companies fail to deliver against those expectations. With the rise in social media, customers are becoming more vocal in expressing any dissatisfaction, which can both lose existing customers and alienate potential new ones. Complaint Management Excellence provides practical advice, tools and techniques for managers to adopt when managing any complaints that come into their organisation. In order to arrive at a culture where complaints are welcomed, the underlying values, processes, structure, strategy and people within an organisation all need to be aligned with, and respect, customer needs. Not only does this improve the long-term prospects for the company itself, but can have a tremendous knock-on effect in terms of boosting employee morale and engagement. With case studies from companies as diverse as John Lewis, Waitrose, DHL, Hilton Hotels, the Starwood group (including Four Seasons and Ritz Carlton hotels) and BT, Complaint Management Excellence explains what customers are really looking for when they make a complaint, how to avoid conflict and how managers can lead culture change to ensure the best experience for all customers and clients.
